THE ELDERS LOST CHANCE

BAD BASE RUNNING DESTROYED
GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

To bum base-running, among other troubles may be attributed the failure of the Elders to do better in the little argument that was pulled off in the frosty atmosphere of Mr. Walker's lawn yesterday afternoon. It was not that the Elders did not run far enough, but rather that they did not use good judgment as to stopping. Two bases were run in the eighth inning, but the Elders the only look-in they had during the game.

There may be few persons disposed to insist that the Elders should have done more hitting. That would probably have helped. It usually does. Quick-eyed runners in the eighth inning, however, to tie up the score had the gentlemen on the bases made better connections with the bags when they sprinted.

This is offered by way of explanation. Some explanation naturally has to be given when the home team loses a game early in the season, and the above is the most plausible explanation at hand.

Cerulean Tint on Everything.

It was a blue day for Salt Lake, not merely because the McCloskeyites won the game, but also because of atmospheric conditions. None too warm when the debate opened, it continued to grow colder, with an occasional whiff of snow in the first and second inning, however, to tie up the score had the gentlemen on the bases made better connections with the bags when they sprinted.

Boise did not begin to do business until the fifth, while the Elders did not better than one run until the eighth. That run came in the first and was secured by Father Gilpin, whose base-running luck is still with him. He dropped a two-bagger close to the right foul line. The ball went into the second and rolled by Babbitt. Ward was backing up the throw and grabbed the ball. Old Gilpin, contrary to all reasonable expectation, did not stop, but proceeded right on toward third. Eddie Quick was over in that country doing a bit of coaching, but there was no Boise man close to the bag. The throw made his face look as if he belonged in Boise, and this deceived Ward into hurrying the ball to Quick. The old Gilpin quickly referred to the throw and Old Gilpin galloped home.

An Unlucky Fifth.

Four straight singles by Starks, Houz, Weaver and McKevitt scored the two first-named in the fifth, and it looked as if more might come. But Bruyette, Delmas and McKevitt snuffed out Ward and McKevitt and retired the side. The seventh was a sad affair. The ball went into the ground and soaked one to the wonds for three bases. Starks got to first on a mizzif and took second on a half-passed ball. Houz picked up the ball and threw it away over second, letting Babbitt in and sending Starks to third. Houz followed with a double, sending Starks and Babbitt to third. McKevitt's single after Weaver had sacrificed him to third.

Only Chance Was Lost.

This made it five to one, but in the eighth an elegant chance to even up was presented and wasted by the bad baserunning referred to. Cook got a walk and Essick hit to Starks. The ball was thrown high to O'Connell and Cook was plenty safe if he had stopped at the bag, but he didn't. He went over and was run down after much coquetting with the entire Boise infield. Essick's second chance to get to second and Muller brought him in with a two-bagger. Weed singled and scored Muller. Gimlin advanced Cook, but a foul ball came up with a double that scored Delmas and drove a hot one into Babbitt. Hausen had been playing away off second and the ball had passed the infield and ran away over the bag. Babbitt had the ball, however, and tagged him. The coaching in this inning was too good. More care on the bases would have tied the score and might have won the game.

The infants added their sixth in the ninth inning. Houz was hit, took second on a passed ball, was sacrificed to third by Weaver and scored on McKevitt's hit.

Boise had the better of the hitting all the way through, bunting up in good shape in two innings for five runs. Salt Lake's best hit was a sacrifice fly by Starks in the eighth when the base running spoiled part of the good effect of the batting. Hostilities will be resumed this afternoon at 2:30, at a fair game between the pitchers named Wiggs and Thompson.
